SHE'S only 16, but she's already a world champion. Corie Dann, 16, from Berhampore, has won a gold medal in the women's power breaking and a silver medal in the women's sparring at the Taekwon-Do Junior World Championships in Seoul, South Korea.

Dann, who has been training in Taekwon-Do since she was 10, was the youngest competitor in the women's power breaking category. She was the only New Zealand girl to compete at the event.

Her coach, Mr. Jon Sawden, said she was "incredible" and "very confident".

Dann said she was "really happy" to win the gold medal and that she was "proud" to represent New Zealand.

She will be competing in the sparring event at the same championships.
